

The Standard

Since 1938, AmLaw 100 firms, U.S. presidents, and international agencies have relied on our litigation support services for reporting, videography, case management, and more.

Court Reporting

Our long-standing relationships with reporters across the country allow us to access the right person, for the right job, at the right price. We review reporters' national and state certifications, years of experience, work history, the equipment they use and their ability to provide real-time services to find the best reporter for each unique situation.

Remote Depositions

We make this easy and we can show you how. All you need is an internet connection. In the court of law, virtual depositions are identical to traditional ones. Everything you can do in person, you can do on our virtual platform.

Videography

We only work with professional videographers who produce top-quality work. Unlike our competition, we don't charge you to synchronize your video to the transcript, and that can cut your costs by up to 50%.

Real Time

Want to read and annotate the transcript as the deposition is taking place, but haven't tried this tool yet? No problem. Alderson can provide complimentary iPads for your next deposition so you can see the value of this tool in action.

Priority Support

We have supported client needs in all 50 states, and in more than 20 foreign countries on five different continents. Through corporate partnerships we have access to conference rooms in sister companies that we can use free of charge, passing the savings onto you.

Legal Certified Transcription

Do you have audio of a hearing, oral argument or some other legal proceeding but don't have a transcript? Send the audio to us and one of our highly skilled transcriptionists will provide you a certified transcript to use for your case.

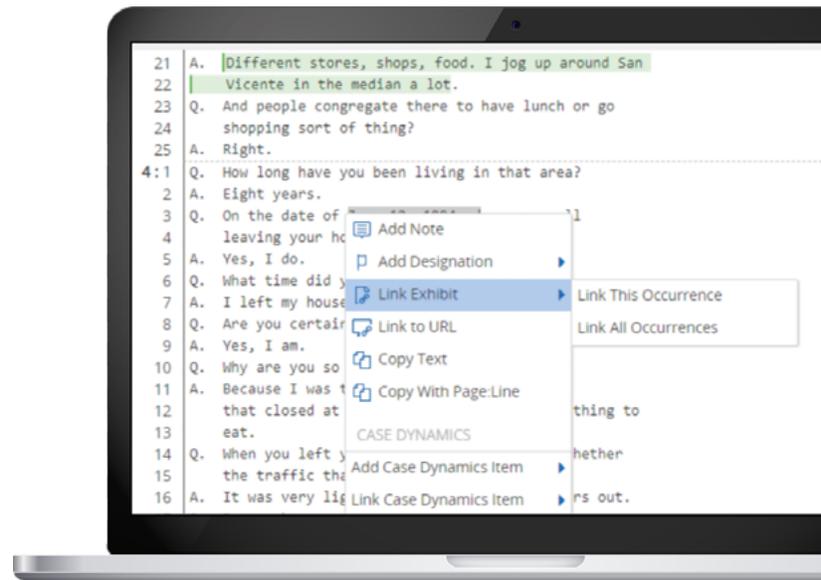

Technology

Virtual Depositions

Our virtual deposition platform is much more than just a shared videoconference. You can introduce exhibits, follow along or annotate the reporters transcript, and choose between 1 and 2 way video. It's everything you need in a deposition, from anywhere in the world.

Case Dynamics

Welcome to depositions version 2.0. The new tool from Relativity® allows you to upload transcripts and automatically check testimony against evidence. Find discrepancies faster and craft a case strategy with greater insight.
